

Grete Gansauer

Grete grew up exploring the trails of Colorado on foot, horseback and by bicycle. Grete's love of the outdoors lead her to get a B.S. in Forestry from Colorado State University, focusing her studies on Botany and Forest Biology. Grete currently works as a Wilderness Fellow for Montana Wilderness Association while also acting as the Noxious Weed Coordinator for Flathead County. Grete originally found FTBT through an Americorps internship last summer, and is now thrilled have joined FTBT to assist in outreach and trails stewardship projects. She is excited to be a part of enjoying and sustaining the amazing recreational opportunities in the Flathead for years to come. "